Investigation

She was told that Durga and Tarun had met each other in 2010 in Delhi and fled homes a year later when her family objected to their relationship. Armed with information that even the police had failed to gather after months of probe, the nurse came back to Noida and told the cops of all possible places where Tarun and Durga could be found.

A few months later in May 2018, the nurse got a call from a woman in Bhopal who claimed Tarun had conned her too of cash and jewellery after marrying her. The woman had come to know about the nurse from a news report.

The two exchanged pictures of their wedding and found that the man who had cheated both was the same.

Tarun and Durga were arrested early on Friday morning when they were on their way to Noida from Varanasi, where they had persuaded a third woman into marriage. Police said the two had conned at least three women of Rs 1 crore with the same modus operandi. Both Tarun and Durga had entered the world of crime long before they cheated the three women. In December 2011, they stole cash and jewellery worth Rs 16 lakh from the house of their landlord. They moved to Chandigarh, where they cheated many of at least Rs 50 lakh with an investment scheme.

Noida SSP Ajay Pal Sharma said the two had Rs 25,000 each on their heads. "We have been trying to trace the couple's location after they fled to Bhopal. We arrested them when they were entering Noida on Friday around 5.30am," he said. "The two were wanted in as many as six cases in Noida, Indore, Chandigarh, Meerut, and Varanasi under relevant sections of the IPC."

New Delhi: The scene at the entrance of JNU's Sabarmati hostel told a chilling tale of the night of broken glass. A rusted iron rod still stood leaning on the entry door on Monday morning with shards of shattered window panes all around.

of the hostel was full of broken glass pieces, from the ground to the second floor. There were marks on room doors which had been banged with sticks.

One of the residents, who did not want to be named, said he had jumped from the second floor to escape the attack. "They were banging the door and breaking glasses. They were all armed. I
